

Tiles Workshop LLC Announces July 2026 Turkish Lamp Studio Opening in Maryland-Virginia-Washington DC Region

June 10, 2026

Dallas, TX - June 10, 2026 -
Tiles Workshop LLC, a Dallas-based cultural arts company specializing in Turkish mosaic lamp-making experiences, announces plans to open its first Maryland-Virginia-Washington DC area studio in July 2026, pending final site confirmation. The expansion brings hands-on mosaic art workshops and traditional Anatolian craftsmanships to a region recognized for its high concentration of international residents, federal and technology sector workers, and strong visitor economy.

The new mosaic art studio will offer beginner-friendly Turkish mosaic lamp workshops where participants design and create illuminated artworks using centuries-old techniques. The studio will also provide retail handcrafted lamps, private group events for corporate teams and celebrations, DIY kits for at-home creation, and gift cards for experience-based presents.

The DMV region presents strategic opportunities for experiential learning businesses. According to the U.S.

Census Bureau's American Community Survey, Northern Virginia contains four of the twelve highest-income jurisdictions nationwide, with Loudoun County ranking first with a median household income of $174,148. Additionally, Destination DC reports that Washington, D.C. welcomed a record 27.2 million visitors in 2024, generating $11.4 billion in visitor spending and supporting 111,500 jobs.

"Bringing this 500-year-old Anatolian craft tradition to the DMV region aligns with our mission to make cultural arts accessible to diverse communities across America," said Matt Yigit, Founder of Tiles Workshop. "The region's appreciation for cultural experiences and educational activities makes it an ideal location for sharing the meditative practice of creating Turkish Mosaic Lamp artwork."

The projected July 2026 grand opening will feature live lamp-making demonstrations and introductory workshops where attendees can experience the craft firsthand. Guests will enjoy complimentary Turkish coffee and baklava while learning about the historical significance of mosaic lamp-making in Turkish culture. The studio will accommodate individuals, families, tourists, and corporate groups seeking team-building experiences that combine creativity with cultural education.

Tiles Workshop has experienced significant growth since establishing its original Dallas location. The company currently operates studios in St. Louis and has recently expanded into Denver, North Carolina, and Wisconsin markets. Each location offers the same authentic Turkish Lamp workshop experience, with instructors guiding participants through the design and assembly process using colorful glass tiles and traditional materials.

The DMV studio will join Tiles Workshop's growing network of locations serving the experience economy. Corporate clients utilize the workshops for team-building exercises and networking events, while individuals book sessions for date nights, birthday celebrations, and tourist activities. The workshops require no prior artistic experience, making them accessible to participants of all skill levels and ages.

Tiles Workshop LLC specializes in Turkish mosaic lamp-making workshops and DIY kits that preserve and share traditional Anatolian craftsmanship. Founded in Dallas, Texas, the company has expanded across multiple states, offering hands-on cultural arts experiences to individuals, families, and corporate groups. Looking ahead, Tiles Workshop plans to deepen its presence in each market through partnerships with local cultural organizations, tourism boards, and community arts programs. The company has received recognition from regional tourism boards and media outlets including VoyageDallas and The Jeff Crilley Show for its contribution to experiential learning and cultural preservation.
