All Pro Thornton Deck Builders Expands Deck Building Services to Broomfield

July 07, 2026

THORNTON, CO - July 07, 2026 -
The Colorado contractor brings custom decks, porches, and outdoor living services to Broomfield-area homeowners.

All Pro Thornton Deck Builders has expanded its deck building services to homeowners throughout Broomfield, Colorado. The locally owned contractor, in business since 2012, now offers dedicated deck design, installation, repair, and outdoor living construction for the Broomfield community, where just under 75,000 residents make up one of the Denver metropolitan area's growing municipalities. The expansion gives Broomfield-area property owners local access to a licensed, bonded, and insured team for custom decks, porches, pool decks, patios, and pergolas.

Broomfield sits within the Denver-Aurora-Lakewood metropolitan statistical area and spans roughly 34 square miles, and its mix of established and newer neighborhoods has supported steady interest in outdoor living spaces. All Pro Thornton Deck Builders said the expanded service area lets its crews offer Broomfield homeowners on-site consultations and shorter project timelines. Alongside new construction, the company provides deck repair and restoration, helping property owners maintain existing structures as well as build new ones.

"Broomfield homeowners take pride in their yards, and a well-built deck often becomes the place where families spend their summers," said David Miller, owner of All Pro Thornton Deck Builders. "Extending dedicated service here means residents work with a local crew that understands Colorado's weather and builds outdoor spaces designed to hold up to it."

The company's work covers custom decks, porch design and installation, pool decks, patios and hardscapes, and shade structures such as pergolas, allowing homeowners to plan multi-feature outdoor projects through a single contractor. Miller noted that demand for larger, multi-purpose outdoor areas has risen as more residents use their yards across the year. In addition to Broomfield, All Pro Thornton Deck Builders serves Denver-metro communities including Thornton, Westminster, Arvada, and Denver.

Colorado's Front Range climate places specific demands on outdoor structures, with intense high-altitude sun, wide temperature swings, and seasonal snow loads that can shorten the lifespan of decks built without suitable materials and hardware. All Pro Thornton Deck Builders said its Broomfield projects account for those conditions in both design and material selection, which can range from pressure-treated lumber to composite decking and weather-rated fasteners. The company added that deck repair and restoration requests in the area often involve older structures that were not built for the local climate.

Deck projects in Broomfield typically begin with an on-site consultation, followed by design, material selection, and construction, with permitting requirements that vary by project scope and location. By formalizing its service area, the company said Broomfield homeowners can schedule those consultations without the delays that sometimes come with crews based farther from the city. The same process applies across its range of work, from single-level decks to multi-feature outdoor living spaces that combine decking, patios, and pergolas.

The expanded service arrives ahead of the spring and summer building season, when demand for new decks and outdoor renovations typically peaks across the Denver metropolitan area. Miller said the company plans to maintain its focus on the Broomfield market as part of its broader work along the Front Range. "Outdoor space has become part of how people use their homes throughout the year, not only in summer," Miller said. "Staying close to the communities the company builds in keeps the same crew involved from the first consultation through the final walkthrough."
