

Delta Roofing Expands Commercial Roofing Operations to Support Ridgeland Business Development

June 12, 2026

RIDGELAND, SC - June 12, 2026 -
Delta Roofing, a roofing contractor based in Jasper County, has expanded its commercial roofing operations in Ridgeland, dedicating additional crews and resources to support growing demand tied to local business development.

The company has assigned dedicated teams and equipment to commercial projects, supporting ongoing construction activity associated with new industrial and retail sites. These expanded capabilities allow Delta Roofing to manage higher commercial workloads, including flat roofing systems, metal installations, and structured maintenance programs that support Ridgeland?s evolving commercial landscape.

This expanded service capacity aligns with continued commercial development throughout the area. Delta Roofing is now focusing resources on warehouse facilities and office expansions that require wind-resistant, energy-efficient roofing systems designed for long-term performance.

According to the company, commercial roofing projects in Ridgeland require systems tailored to regional Lowcountry conditions, including sustained humidity and exposure to high winds. Recent operational enhancements supporting projects based out of Ridgeland allow the company to stock roofing materials locally, helping reduce lead times for projects serving Hardeeville and the surrounding areas of Jasper County. All roofing work follows manufacturer specifications and applicable local building codes.

Industry shifts toward hybrid workspaces and adaptive reuse have also influenced commercial roofing specifications. In response, Delta Roofing incorporates reflective coatings to help reduce heat gain in repurposed structures. The company?s expanded capacity supports phased installation schedules that minimize disruption to active businesses, including strip mall re-roofs completed during off-peak hours. Metal panel systems, valued for durability and low maintenance, remain a common choice for new construction, particularly in areas anticipating continued commercial growth. These systems meet manufacturer and regional standards for uplift resistance in accordance with applicable building requirements.

Delta Roofing?s commercial service scope includes full roof replacements, transitioning older gravel or built-up systems to modern polymer-based alternatives designed for extended service life. Maintenance contracts, now scaled to support a broader commercial client base, include twice-yearly inspections focused on common issues such as blistering, alligatoring, and fastener corrosion.

The company?s established presence in Jasper County also supports coordination with architects on ventilation improvements and edge metal detailing, contributing to overall building performance. Financing partnerships further help mid-sized commercial property owners manage upfront project costs.

?As Ridgeland continues to attract new businesses, our goal is to stay ahead of that growth with the right people, equipment, and systems in place,? said Richard Blyudzhyus, owner and founder of Delta Roofing. ?Strengthening our commercial roofing capacity allows us to serve local developers more efficiently and with the reliability they expect.?

Delta Roofing?s commercial roofing operations in Ridgeland also incorporate digital measurement tools and drone-assisted surveys, helping streamline estimates for complex roof geometries such as multi-level retail structures. The company emphasizes clean site management practices, including routine debris removal and protection of adjacent landscaping throughout the installation process. Warranty coverage combines manufacturer protections with workmanship warranties, supporting long-term asset performance.

Drawing on years of experience, the Ridgeland-based operations maintain established supplier relationships with manufacturers such as Owens Corning across a range of roofing systems. Commercial property managers also benefit from phased maintenance strategies that prioritize high-traffic areas. Architectural elements, including copper accents and standing-seam profiles, add functional durability while enhancing the appearance of visible commercial facades. Delta Roofing coordinates project timelines with developers and commercial stakeholders, supporting continued commercial growth across Jasper County.

In addition to commercial projects, Delta Roofing provides roof installation, replacement, emergency roof repair, and maintenance services for residential properties. The company serves Ridgeland, Beaufort County, Hilton Head, Bluffton, Okatie, Hardeeville, and surrounding Jasper County communities.

While prioritizing commercial roofing growth in Ridgeland, Delta Roofing continues to support residential clients as outlined on its residential roofing page. Commercial inquiries can be directed to the Ridgeland office at (843) 489-8555 or by visiting deltaroofing.co.
