Oasis Center Expands Treatment Programs to Address Rising Addiction Crisis in NYC

June 15, 2026

NEW YORK, NY - June 15, 2026 -
Oasis Center, a Manhattan-based addiction treatment facility, has expanded its comprehensive treatment programs to meet the growing demand for substance abuse services in New York City. The facility now offers enhanced medical detox, residential care, and outpatient programs designed to address both substance use disorders and co-occurring mental health conditions.

The expansion comes as New York continues to face significant challenges related to substance abuse, with recent state data showing increased demand for treatment services across all five boroughs. As a leading addiction center New York residents have turned to for evidence-based care, Oasis Center has responded by strengthening its clinical programs and extending its round-the-clock support services.

"The need for accessible, comprehensive addiction treatment has never been more critical," said a spokesperson for Oasis Center. "Our expanded programs ensure that individuals at every stage of recovery can access the level of care they need, from medical detoxification through long-term recovery support."

The facility's enhanced services include 24/7 medically supervised detoxification for alcohol, opioids, benzodiazepines, and stimulants. Medical professionals provide continuous monitoring to ensure patients safely manage withdrawal symptoms in a supportive environment. Following detox, patients can transition seamlessly into residential treatment or choose from various outpatient options based on their individual needs.

Oasis addiction center inpatient rehab in NYC programs provide structured residential treatment with round-the-clock clinical support. The residential program combines individual therapy, group counseling, and holistic approaches to address the complex nature of addiction. For those who require flexibility while maintaining their work or family commitments, the center offers intensive outpatient programs with evening options, providing nine or more hours of therapy per week.

A distinctive aspect of Oasis Center's approach involves its integrated dual diagnosis treatment, addressing both addiction and co-occurring mental health conditions simultaneously. This comprehensive model recognizes that many individuals struggling with substance use disorders also face challenges such as depression, anxiety, or trauma-related conditions.

The facility has also expanded its Medication-Assisted Treatment program, combining FDA-approved medications including Suboxone, Vivitrol, and methadone with counseling services. This evidence-based approach helps patients manage cravings and withdrawal symptoms while reducing the risk of relapse.

"Every person who walks through our doors deserves compassionate, individualized care," added a representative. "Our expanded programs ensure we can meet patients where they are in their recovery journey and provide the appropriate level of support."

The center accepts most major commercial insurance plans and provides free confidential assessments, with same-day assessments available for those in urgent need of care.

Oasis Center operates as a private addiction treatment facility in Manhattan, maintaining a 24/7 confidential helpline for individuals and families affected by drug and alcohol addiction. The clinical team remains available around the clock to provide immediate support and guidance to those seeking help for substance use disorders.
