April 28, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Fendrick & Morgan, LLC, of Voorhees Township, New Jersey, has announced that Jamie Shuster Morgan, Esq, is scheduled to be a speaker at a meeting of the Society of Financial Service Professionals (SFSP) in Mt. Laurel on May 10, 2016. She will be focusing on women and estate planning.

Jamie Shuster Morgan said: "Women are integral to the estate planning process, and often have special and unique concerns. Women, statistically, live longer than men and many of them are not independently as financially secure as their spouses. Therefore, special care needs to be taken to protect them in the event of the spouse either passes away or requires long term care. Our firm is exceptional in helping women plan for the future."

Fendrick & Morgan offers a number of estate planning and estate tax planning services for a variety of needs. Their company website provides a complete list of the specific services they provide, as well as service areas and information regarding their attorneys and other staff. The attorneys state that these are crucial areas to consider and recommend a consultation for those who have not made plans for their futures.

Morgan states that those interested can visit them online to learn more about how they can help with a number of financial planning services. The firm also states that they are pleased that Fendrick will be speaking at the Pennsylvania Bar Institute event later in May, and that they can provide more information on that as well for those interested in attending.

Attorneys with the firm, Douglas Fendrick and Jamie Morgan, are both licensed to practice law in Pennsylvania, as well as New Jersey, and can help individuals to plan for their futures through their services.
