ALEXANDRIA, MN - June 15, 2026 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Paffrath Diamond Jewelers is marking 100 years of operation. The company, which began in 1926, has provided Ideal Cut Diamonds and custom jewelry creation services for a full century. Customers continue to access natural and lab-grown diamonds along with full custom design processes for engagement rings, bridal jewelry, and other pieces.

This milestone highlights the company's consistent focus on diamond quality and individualized craftsmanship. Paffrath Diamond Jewelers has supported generations of families through its established services. The custom creation process enables clients to develop pieces from initial concepts to completed items using verified materials and standard fabrication methods.

Joel Paffrath, owner, reflected on the significance of the anniversary. "Marking 100 years means we have applied our expertise in Ideal Cut Diamonds and custom design to help families commemorate important moments across generations," remarked Paffrath.

The company maintains its emphasis on Ideal Cut Diamonds as the foundation of its diamond offerings. Both natural and lab-grown options are available, allowing flexibility in stone selection while adhering to cut quality standards. These diamonds integrate into the custom workflow for engagement rings and bridal jewelry, where clients participate in decisions on settings, metals, and design details.

Paffrath Diamond Jewelers structures its custom jewelry design services as a complete process from start to finish. Initial consultations involve review of design ideas and material samples. Diamond selection follows, with attention to carat weight, color, clarity, and Ideal Cut specifications. Fabrication includes setting stones in chosen metals such as platinum, white gold, yellow gold, or rose gold. Clients receive opportunities for review and adjustment at key stages before final polishing and completion.

This approach applies directly to engagement rings, including common styles such as solitaire, halo, and multi-stone configurations. Bridal jewelry extends to coordinating wedding bands, anniversary pieces, and complementary items. The process supports personalization while maintaining consistent quality controls developed over the company's history.

Joel Paffrath, owner, addressed the ongoing service.

"Through 100 years our custom creation process has remained focused on producing engagement rings and bridal jewelry that meet individual specifications using Ideal Cut Diamonds," said Joel Paffrath, owner.

Paffrath Diamond Jewelers operates with direct client involvement throughout each project. Consultations occur in the showroom or through website inquiries. Inventory browsing includes natural and lab-grown diamonds suitable for custom work. The full custom pathway accommodates a range of requests, from modifications of existing pieces to entirely new designs built from scratch.

Over the course of a century the company has refined its methods for diamond handling and jewelry assembly. This experience informs the current service model, which combines historical knowledge with practical execution. Clients benefit from expert guidance during selection and design phases without pressure. The result is jewelry developed according to documented client preferences.

Paffrath Diamond Jewelers continues to serve its community with the same dedication that has defined its operations since 1926. The 100-year mark represents sustained application of standards in Ideal Cut Diamonds and custom creation. Natural and lab-grown diamonds, along with complete custom services, remain central to the offerings for engagement rings, bridal jewelry, and related categories.

The company's background centers on a century of activity in diamond jewelry. Paffrath Diamond Jewelers specializes in Ideal Cut Diamonds and extends full custom design capabilities from start to finish. This combination has supported family milestones through consistent service in natural and lab-grown options.
