June 29, 2026

Zurich, Zurich - June 29, 2026 -
IntroDrink, a Swiss online retailer specializing in premium natural supplements and wellness products, has expanded its comprehensive range of plant-based health solutions to meet growing consumer demand for natural detoxification and immune support products across Switzerland.

The expansion comes as Swiss consumers increasingly prioritize natural health alternatives over synthetic supplements, with particular interest in traditional plant extracts and scientifically-backed botanical compounds. The company's enhanced product portfolio now features an extensive selection of detoxification supplements, including chlorella, spirulina, milk thistle, and artichoke extracts, alongside immune-supporting formulations containing vitamin C, zinc, and adaptogenic herbs.

IntroDrink plant compounds represent a significant portion of the expanded catalog, with the company offering curcumin, rhodiola, maca, and various medicinal mushroom extracts including reishi and lion's mane. These botanical ingredients have been selected based on their traditional use in wellness practices and emerging scientific research supporting their potential health benefits.

The Swiss wellness market has experienced substantial growth in recent years, with consumers seeking transparent, high-quality nutritional supplements that align with natural health philosophies. IntroDrink's product curation focuses on bioavailability and purity, ensuring that each supplement meets stringent quality standards while maintaining natural integrity.

Beyond traditional supplements, the company has broadened its offerings to include natural cosmetics, featuring tallow-based skincare products, Aleppo soap, and various plant oils such as argan and jojoba. This diversification reflects a holistic approach to wellness that encompasses both internal and external health support.

IntroDrink detox products have gained particular attention among health-conscious Swiss consumers seeking to support their body's natural cleansing processes. The detoxification category includes specialized formulations combining multiple plant extracts, such as liver support complexes containing nine different botanical ingredients, as well as single-ingredient options like zeolite and bentonite clay.

The company's commitment to education accompanies its product expansion, with IntroDrink providing science-based health content to help consumers make informed decisions about their wellness routines. This educational approach addresses the growing consumer desire for transparency and understanding regarding supplement ingredients and their mechanisms of action.

Adaptogenic herbs and functional mushrooms represent another growing category within IntroDrink's expanded range. Products featuring ashwagandha, cordyceps, and ginkgo biloba cater to consumers seeking natural stress management and cognitive support solutions. These offerings align with current wellness trends emphasizing mental health and stress resilience.

The expansion also includes specialized bundles designed for specific health goals, including immune support, beauty enhancement, detoxification, and energy optimization. These curated combinations provide consumers with comprehensive wellness solutions that address multiple health aspects simultaneously.

IntroDrink operates as an online-only retailer, serving the Swiss market with fast delivery and a focus on customer education. The company's product selection emphasizes natural ingredients, with numerous vegan and organic options available across all categories.
