June 23, 2026

Land O' Lakes, Florida - June 23, 2026 -
Elevate Marketing Solutions, a specialized health and wellness marketing agency focused on chiropractic and related practices, continues to deliver integrated marketing systems designed to drive sustainable patient growth for independent clinics nationwide. Drawing from deep operational experience within the industry, the agency emphasizes building complete frameworks that connect lead generation with actual booked appointments rather than isolated advertising efforts.

The approach reflects years of hands-on involvement in chiropractic operations, including the founder's experience scaling his own practice. Elevate Marketing Solutions works with practices across varying markets and sizes, developing strategies tailored to the unique patterns of patient seasonality, retention, and conversion specific to health and wellness providers. This includes paid advertising on platforms such as Facebook, Google, and TikTok, alongside website design, local search engine optimization and answer engine optimization, and automation systems that support lead capture and follow-up.

The agency builds playbooks informed by direct experience in the chiropractic space. Campaigns tie directly back to measurable outcomes like scheduled appointments, with adjustments made when data indicates areas for improvement. The agency also supports marketing for specialized services, including neuropathy care, shockwave therapy, spinal decompression, and prenatal and pediatric care.

"Having grown my own practice to seven figures in under five years through effective online and in-person marketing, I understand the challenges health and wellness providers face in today's digital environment," said Dr. Kendall Price, Founder and CEO of Elevate Marketing Solutions. "Our focus at Elevate is on creating systems that not only generate leads but convert them into patients who stay and thrive under care. We prioritize data-driven refinements and operational integration to help practices achieve predictable growth."

Dr. Kendall Price, a 2015 graduate of Life University, opened Aurora Chiropractic in Aurora, Illinois, and scaled it rapidly by mastering marketing fundamentals. He has mentored multiple associates who went on to establish successful independent practices. Through Elevate Marketing Solutions, he has supported offices in the health and wellness sector. His leadership emphasizes education for clinic owners on navigating evolving digital marketing landscapes while maintaining a strong commitment to patient-centered care.

The agency's comprehensive services address common gaps observed across practices. Many clinics generate leads yet struggle with conversion due to factors such as response times, communication consistency, and front desk capacity. Elevate Marketing Solutions incorporates speed-to-lead protocols, patient nurturing sequences, and human follow-up processes within automated systems to reduce drop-off. This full-funnel attention helps bridge the gap between initial interest and completed appointments.

Website development under the agency prioritizes clean, fast-loading designs that establish trust quickly and guide visitors toward booking. Local search strategies ensure practices appear prominently when potential patients seek relevant treatments in their areas. Paid campaigns are engineered for high-intent audiences, with creative and targeting refined based on performance data specific to chiropractic and wellness contexts.

Practices often contend with variable lead quality, fluctuating show rates, and the necessity of aligning marketing with actual service delivery. Elevate Marketing Solutions supports coordination through trust-driven messaging. The agency maintains selectivity in partnerships, conducting initial assessments to confirm mutual fit and realistic growth opportunities. The process typically begins with a complimentary audit of current marketing systems, followed by a customized growth blueprint.

Dr. Kendall Price added, "The digital world changes rapidly, but the core principles of building trust and delivering value remain constant. At Elevate Marketing Solutions, we equip practice owners with the tools and knowledge to market effectively while focusing on what matters most: exceptional patient outcomes. Our goal is to foster business owners who excel both clinically and operationally within the health and wellness community."

The agency continues to refine its frameworks based on real-world results from partnered practices. This iterative process ensures campaigns evolve with market conditions and technological advancements, maintaining relevance for chiropractic, medical, med spa, and similar health and wellness businesses. Support extends beyond initial setup to ongoing optimization and education.

Elevate Marketing Solutions operates as a dedicated partner for practice growth, combining creative strategy, technical implementation, and operational insight. The team's experience spans creative development, follow-up systems, and patient conversion tactics, all grounded in the nuances of health and wellness service delivery. As the demand for specialized care grows, practices equipped with robust marketing systems are positioned to connect with patients seeking quality treatment. Elevate Marketing Solutions remains committed to advancing standards in health and wellness marketing through proven, transparent methodologies that prioritize measurable results and ethical practices.
