Cestari Introduces Kitchen Partner Program Featuring Chocolate and Dessert Pairing Videos

June 23, 2026

LITTLETON, MA - June 23, 2026 -
Cestari Kitchen has introduced a Kitchen Partner program within its TableTalk newsletter that connects specialty food producers with home cooking enthusiasts through featured weekly collaborations and educational content.

The program, which highlights one independent specialty food brand each week in the weekly cooking newsletter for home cooks, recently featured Austrian chocolate manufacturer Zotter Chocolates in a special edition focused on no-bake desserts. The collaboration included a demonstration of chocolate, cheese, and fruit pairings designed to help home cooks expand their dessert repertoire without turning on the oven.

"The Kitchen Partner program represents our commitment to introducing our readers to exceptional specialty food makers while providing practical, accessible content," said Susan MacDowell, Director of Content at Cestari Kitchen. "By featuring brands like Zotter Chocolates alongside our recipe demonstrations, we're creating meaningful connections between artisan producers and passionate home cooks who value quality ingredients."

The Zotter Chocolates feature included step-by-step guidance on pairing the Austrian company's bean-to-bar chocolates with complementary cheeses and seasonal fruits. The content was delivered through Cestari recipe videos, demonstrating techniques for creating elegant dessert presentations suitable for both casual family dinners and special occasions.

Cestari's TableTalk newsletter reaches subscribers who receive weekly digital content including exclusive recipes, kitchen techniques, and product spotlights. The Kitchen Partner program has emerged as a regular feature that introduces readers to specialty food brands through practical applications rather than traditional product reviews.

The collaboration with Zotter Chocolates showcased the versatility of premium chocolate beyond traditional baking applications. The featured pairings emphasized the chocolate's organic and fair-trade qualities while demonstrating how home cooks can create sophisticated desserts with minimal preparation time.

"Working with specialty food makers allows us to share their expertise and craftsmanship with our community in ways that go beyond simple product placement," added MacDowell. "When we featured Zotter, we focused on teaching pairing principles that readers could apply with any quality chocolate, while highlighting what makes their particular products special."

The Kitchen Partner program selects featured brands based on their alignment with Cestari's focus on quality ingredients and practical cooking techniques. Each weekly feature includes educational content that helps subscribers understand not just what to use, but how and why certain ingredients work together.

Cestari Kitchen, known for its lifetime-guaranteed kitchen tools and educational content, launched the TableTalk newsletter as part of its mission to deepen family connections through cooking. The newsletter combines product expertise with practical guidance, offering subscribers access to professional techniques adapted for home kitchens.

The company maintains an active presence across digital platforms, including a YouTube channel with over 800 cooking videos covering everything from seasonal recipes to kitchen tool demonstrations. The Kitchen Partner program represents an expansion of this educational approach, creating opportunities for specialty food producers to reach engaged home cooks through content-driven collaborations.
