Pyzer Criminal Lawyers Represents Clients From Arrest Through Trial

June 24, 2026

YORK, ON - June 24, 2026 -
Pyzer Criminal Lawyers has reaffirmed its approach to criminal defence representation, providing legal counsel to clients from the early stages following arrest or detention through subsequent court proceedings, including trial where a matter proceeds to that stage.

The Toronto-based criminal defence law firm responds to clients during the initial hours of detention, offering Charter rights consultations and guidance through police questioning procedures before formal charges are laid. Individuals have the right to retain and instruct legal counsel without delay upon arrest or detention under the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms. The firm?s 24-hour availability supports clients seeking to exercise this right when arrests or detentions occur outside regular business hours.

?Our approach is designed to help clients understand the criminal justice process from the earliest stages of a matter,? said Jonathan Pyzer. ?From arrest through later court proceedings, we provide legal guidance and representation focused on protecting clients? rights and responding to the circumstances of each case.?

The firm's legal representation extends through bail hearings and release applications, pre-trial motions, case management proceedings, and courtroom litigation. Cases involving assault, sexual offences, impaired driving, drug offences, property crimes, weapons offences, and homicide are handled throughout each stage by the same legal team. This means counsel is familiar with the complete history of the case at every court appearance.

Bail hearings are among the earliest and most time-sensitive stages of any criminal proceeding. Pyzer Criminal Lawyers prepares release applications, develops proposed release plans, and presents submissions for the court?s consideration as matters progress through the court system. Access to legal counsel at this stage can have lasting implications for how a case develops in the months that follow.

Maintaining consistent representation as cases move through multiple procedural stages is a core element of the firm's practice model. Defence strategies developed at the outset of a case are refined and adjusted as matters progress through the court system, with the legal team drawing on its accumulated understanding of the client's circumstances. Pyzer Criminal Lawyers appears at all levels of Ontario trial courts, serving clients throughout the Greater Toronto Area and surrounding communities, including Barrie, Mississauga, Brampton, Hamilton, Oshawa, and Newmarket.

Founded in 2002, the firm has represented clients facing a broad range of criminal charges in Ontario courts for more than two decades. The legal team appears in Ontario trial courts, including the Ontario Court of Justice and the Superior Court of Justice, and handles matters of varying seriousness.

"Every case requires thorough preparation from the initial consultation through the final court appearance," said Pyzer. "We review the facts, disclosure, procedure, and applicable law to pursue the strongest available defence throughout the entire process. This preparation often surfaces defence opportunities that only become apparent through sustained engagement with a case."

Initial case evaluations are available for individuals seeking legal counsel on criminal charges in Toronto and across Ontario. All client communications are treated confidentially, and initial case evaluations carry no obligation. Pyzer Criminal Lawyers can be reached at any time through its 24-hour contact line.
