

Deck It, Bolton's Platinum-Certified Composite Deck Specialist, Brings Three Manufacturer Certifications and NADRA Membership to Every Build

June 25, 2026

BOLTON, MA - June 25, 2026 -

Deck It, a custom deck builder specializing in composite and PVC decking, holds Platinum-level certification with both Trex and TimberTech by AZEK, the highest contractor tier in each manufacturer's professional program. The company also holds Certified Wolf Pro status and is an active member of the North American Deck and Railing Association.

Founded in 2017 by longtime friends Jake Zbikowski and Patrick Byrne, who worked as general contractors before narrowing their focus exclusively to deck construction, Deck It has completed more than 500 projects and counts over 40 years of combined construction experience across its team. The decision to specialize came as the founders concentrated on a single trade rather than general home improvement work, and the company now operates with an in-house crew rather than relying on subcontracted labor. The company serves residential and commercial property owners across Central Massachusetts and the Greater Boston area.

"Holding Platinum status with both Trex and TimberTech reflects the standards our crews apply on every build," said Jake Zbikowski, co-founder of Deck It. "It also keeps our team current on the systems and installation methods these manufacturers require."

Maintaining Platinum status with both manufacturers requires meeting each program's training and installation standards, and it ties the company's practices to manufacturer specifications that affect material warranties. The certifications span composite and PVC decking along with railing, framing, and trim systems. Manufacturer programs at this level generally require contractors to demonstrate completed installations and ongoing product training to retain their standing.

The North American Deck and Railing Association membership connects the company to an industry body that publishes construction guidance and safety standards for decks and railings. Deck It applies that guidance alongside manufacturer specifications across its residential and commercial work.

Deck It installs composite and PVC decking across the major platforms, with Trex and TimberTech by AZEK as its primary brands. Framing is available in aluminum, composite, and pressure-treated lumber, and foundations include helical pier and traditional concrete footing installations. The company builds platform, raised, multi-level, freestanding, rooftop, pool, curved, and covered decks, and integrates railing, lighting, underdeck water management, privacy screens, and skirting into its projects. Underdeck drainage is handled through Trex RainEscape and TimberTech DrySpace systems, railing options include composite, aluminum, and cable, and deck lighting is offered with design consultation, installation, and lighting automation.

"Specializing in decking lets us standardize how we build and document each project from the first design through the final walkthrough," said Patrick Byrne, co-founder of Deck It. "That consistency is what the manufacturer programs are measuring when they certify a contractor at the Platinum level."

Each project moves through a defined design and build process that includes a free estimate, 3D deck modeling, permit acquisition, and a final review on completion. The company also outlines its workmanship coverage at the time of contract, with labor warranties that vary by system in addition to the manufacturer material warranties carried by the decking and railing products it installs.

Beyond decking, Deck It builds covered porches, screened-in porches, three-season rooms, and sunrooms, and provides repair, restoration, additions, and full rebuilds for aging structures. The team also constructs wheelchair-accessible ramps for residential and commercial properties that require ADA-compliant access.

The company coordinates project work from locations in Bolton, Framingham, and Burlington, serving communities that include Concord, Acton, Hudson, Lexington, Newton, Marlborough, and Worcester, among others across the region. Deck It offers free estimates, 3D deck modeling, and permit acquisition as part of its design and build process.

Founded in 2017 and based in Bolton, Massachusetts, Deck It is a family-owned composite and PVC deck specialist serving Central Massachusetts and the Greater Boston area. The company holds TrexPro Platinum, TimberTech Platinum, and Certified Wolf Pro credentials and is a member of the North American Deck and Railing Association.
