Azalea Hospitality Announces Early Registration for 2027 Masters Tournament Packages

July 02, 2026

AUGUSTA, GA - July 02, 2026 -
Azalea Hospitality has opened early registration for the 2027 Masters Tournament, allowing golf enthusiasts to secure ticket options and hospitality packages three years in advance of the prestigious championship at Augusta National Golf Club.

The ticketing and hospitality provider has begun accepting reservations for various package options, including ticket-only arrangements, VIP experiences, and comprehensive packages featuring hotel accommodations or private housing. The early registration period addresses growing demand for Masters Tournament access, as the annual golf championship continues to attract spectators from around the world.

"Opening registration this far in advance gives fans the opportunity to plan their Masters experience with certainty," said Josh B, Director of Client Services at Azalea Hospitality. "The Masters Tournament represents one of golf's most sought-after experiences, and securing tickets has become increasingly competitive. By allowing clients to Reserve 2027 Masters Tickets now, we're helping them guarantee their place at one of sport's most iconic events."

The 2027 Masters Tournament will mark another chapter in the championship's storied history at Augusta National Golf Club in Augusta, Georgia. The tournament, traditionally held in early April, brings together the world's elite golfers competing for the coveted green jacket. Beyond standard ticketing options, Azalea Hospitality offers various hospitality packages designed to enhance the tournament experience, from basic grounds access to premium VIP arrangements.

The company's early registration system includes wait-list options for specific ticket categories and premium package selections. This approach allows interested parties to indicate their preferences well ahead of the tournament, ensuring they receive priority consideration as inventory becomes available. The registration process covers multiple ticket types, including practice round passes, daily tournament badges, and weekly packages that provide access throughout the championship.

Azalea Hospitality also facilitates ticket transactions for individuals looking to sell their existing masters tickets, managing the process and providing upfront payment to sellers. This service complements the company's primary focus on securing tournament access for clients seeking to attend the Masters.

Beyond the Masters Tournament, the company provides similar services for other major golf championships, including the PGA Championship, The Open Championship, and The Ryder Cup. The organization has established itself as a specialist in golf event hospitality, developing relationships and expertise that enable access to some of golf's most exclusive tournaments.

The 2027 tournament will continue the Masters' tradition of bringing together past champions, current tour professionals, and qualifying amateurs in pursuit of one of golf's four major championships. The event's unique traditions, pristine course conditions, and limited attendance create an atmosphere that distinguishes it from other professional golf tournaments.

Azalea Hospitality operates independently and maintains no official affiliation with the Masters Tournament, Augusta National Golf Club, or Augusta National, Inc. The company specializes in providing ticketing and hospitality services for major golf events, leveraging industry expertise to facilitate tournament access for golf enthusiasts worldwide.
