

Villandry Home & Outdoor Living Marks Nearly 30 Years in Business

June 25, 2026

MERRIMACK, NH - June 25, 2026 -

Villandry Home & Outdoor Living, a family-owned design-build company with locations in Merrimack and Warner, New Hampshire, is marking nearly three decades in business and reaffirming its focus on custom decks and outdoor living spaces. The company has operated across New Hampshire since 1997 and has completed more than 400 residential and commercial projects in that time.

The milestone traces back to the founding of Rick Villandry Remodeling, established by Rick Villandry in 1997 as a one-trade carpentry operation serving homeowners in Southern New Hampshire. Over the following decades the business broadened its scope and was renamed Villandry Home & Outdoor Living, a change that reflected its evolution into a full design-build firm with its work centered on deck construction and outdoor living.

The company is now led by Rich Villandry, who brings a formal background in Construction Management and Architecture to the family business. He works directly with homeowners through each phase of a project, from the initial planning session and 3D design modeling through permitting, material selection, and the final walkthrough. The company operates as a multi-generational family business, with Brianna Villandry managing client experience and marketing across both locations.

"Reaching almost thirty years is less about us and more about the families and properties we have worked on along the way," said Rich Villandry, Co-Owner of Villandry Home & Outdoor Living. "Our goal has always been to build something that lasts and to create a legacy bigger than ourselves."

At the core of the company's work is custom deck construction. As a certified Deckorators installer, the company builds with composite and PVC decking and supports manufacturer material warranties of up to 50 years on qualifying systems. Decks are framed in steel through the company's membership in the Fortress Building Products alliance, which carries a limited lifetime warranty on the framing. The company is also a member of the North American Deck and Railing Association, has been recognized through the Best of Houzz program, and holds an A+ rating with the Better Business Bureau.

Each project begins with planning and 3D design modeling before any permits are pulled, an approach the company uses to resolve layout, material, and site questions before construction begins. That process is intended to give homeowners a clear picture of the finished result early, particularly on properties with grade changes or other site conditions common in New Hampshire.

Beyond the deck itself, the company designs complete outdoor environments that can include porches, three-season rooms and sunrooms, pergolas, patios, outdoor kitchens, and privacy structures. For homeowners who want a single contractor for both the backyard and the interior, Villandry Home & Outdoor Living also finishes basements and takes on home remodeling, applying the same design-build process used on its outdoor projects.

"We approach an interior project the same way we approach a deck or a patio," said Rich Villandry. "It is the same planning, the same project management, and the same standards from the first sketch to the final finish."

The company's two locations allow it to serve a wide region. From its primary office in Merrimack, it reaches homeowners and commercial clients throughout Southern New Hampshire, while its Warner location extends that coverage north into the Lake Sunapee region.

"A lot of what we do comes back to communication and making the process clear for the homeowner," said Brianna Villandry, who oversees client experience for the company. "After nearly thirty years, that part has not changed."

Looking ahead, the company has said its focus is continued growth that creates opportunity for its team and a lasting impact in the communities it serves.
