June 25, 2026

NEEDHAM, MA - June 25, 2026 -

Bevilacqua Deck Builders, a custom deck and outdoor living contractor owned by Anthony Bevilacqua, has completed more than 100 deck and outdoor living projects across the region. The company, which operates from offices in Needham and Medway, Massachusetts, reached the milestone while focusing exclusively on decks and the outdoor living spaces built around them.

Founded in 2017, Bevilacqua Deck Builders is led by owner Anthony Bevilacqua, who brings more than 15 years of experience in construction and remodeling. Before concentrating on deck building, he worked across home renovation and new home construction, and he now guides each project from the first design conversation through the final walkthrough.

The company provides end-to-end deck construction that covers deck design, design consultation, 3D deck models, permit acquisition, foundation installation, framing, and deck rebuilds or replacements. Each project begins with a 3D design model that allows homeowners to see the finished result before construction begins. The company builds residential and commercial decks in a range of configurations, including multi-level, raised, platform, freestanding, rooftop, pool and spa, curved, cantilevered, screened, and covered decks. As part of that work, the company manages the permitting and inspection steps required for new deck construction in Massachusetts, coordinating local approvals before a project breaks ground.

"Reaching this point comes down to staying focused on one thing and doing it well," said Anthony Bevilacqua, owner of Bevilacqua Deck Builders. "Every deck starts with a 3D model so a homeowner can see the finished space before we build it, and that planning is what keeps the work consistent from one project to the next."

Material and structural choices are matched to each site. The company works with pressure-treated wood, softwoods such as cedar and redwood, exotic hardwoods including Ipe, Tigerwood, and Cumaru, composite decking, and PVC decking. Structural options include wood, steel, aluminum, and composite framing, supported by helical pier, diamond pier, and traditional concrete footings. The company describes matching the right material and footing to each property as central to building for long-term durability in the New England climate.

Deck features extend beyond the surface. Railing options include wooden, composite, glass, vinyl, aluminum, steel, cable, and wrought iron, and the company also builds privacy screens and privacy walls. Deck lighting work covers design, wiring, automation, landscape lighting integration, post cap and rail lights, and step lights. The company installs underdeck systems in panel-based, gutter-and-channel, snap-in, and custom-fabricated configurations to create dry, usable space below an elevated deck.

The company also designs and builds the structures that surround a deck, including pergolas, louvered pergolas, cabanas, pavilions, gazebos, porches, sunrooms, three-season rooms, patios, outdoor kitchens, and firepits. According to the company, these elements are planned together with the deck so the finished result functions as one cohesive outdoor living space rather than a set of separate additions.

Bevilacqua Deck Builders holds manufacturer certifications including TimberTech Pro, Deckorators, and TrexPro, credentials tied to manufacturer installation training. The company works with decking brands including Trex, Fiberon, TimberTech by Azek, Deckorators, Barrette Outdoor Living, Duralife, MoistureShield, TruNorth, and Veka Deck, along with Fortress Building Products, Owens Corning, and ProWood for framing. Qualifying composite systems carry manufacturer material warranties of up to 50 years.

Anthony Bevilacqua said the company's focus going forward remains on deck and outdoor living work across its Needham and Medway service areas. "The goal has always been to be the deck builder people in this area think of first," he said. "Staying specialized is how we get there."
