

Colorado Custom Covers and Decks Marks Fifteen Years in Business

June 25, 2026

MORRISON, CO - June 25, 2026 -

Colorado Custom Covers and Decks, a locally owned outdoor living contractor, has reached its fifteenth year in business, a milestone the company marks after completing more than 400 custom deck and outdoor structure projects across Morrison and the surrounding Denver foothills since 2015. The company, owned by Jonathan Moeller, operates from Plateau Cir in Morrison and works exclusively with local crews who build in the same foothills communities where they live.

The fifteen-year mark reflects a deliberately narrow focus. Rather than operating as a general contractor, the company concentrates on custom decks and patio covers engineered for the specific demands of foothills properties, including sloped lots, high-altitude sun exposure, and heavy mountain snow loads. That specialization has shaped how the company approaches each project, from foundation through finish.

"Building in the foothills is a different discipline than building on flat ground," said Jonathan Moeller, owner of Colorado Custom Covers and Decks. "The grade, the soil, the snow load, and the sun at this elevation all change how a deck has to be engineered. Fifteen years of working in these conditions is what allows us to build structures that hold up over time."

Custom deck construction remains the center of the company's work. Projects range across residential and commercial decks in platform, raised, multi-level, freestanding, rooftop, pool and spa, curved, cantilevered, screened, and covered configurations. Each build begins with a design consultation, three-dimensional deck modeling, foundation work, permit acquisition, and framing handled directly by the company before installation begins. Decking is built with hardwoods such as Ipe, Tigerwood, and Cumaru, along with composite decking from Deckorators, set on framing of wood, steel, composite, and ProWood pressure-treated lumber over concrete footings sized for foothills conditions.

Custom covers form the other half of the company's specialty and its name. Patio and deck covers are constructed with timber framing and tongue-and-groove ceilings in gable, hip, shed, and covered-patio styles. The company also builds pergolas in attached, freestanding, gable, arched, and louvered configurations, including motorized, manual, and fixed louvered systems that adjust shade and weather protection as foothills conditions change through the seasons.

Finishing systems are matched to the setting. Railing options include glass, aluminum, steel cable, wrought iron, and composite designs that meet safety codes while preserving the mountain views that draw many homeowners to the area. Deck lighting, wired and installed in-house, covers post cap and rail lights, step lights, and post lighting. Underdeck treatments such as the Trex RainEscape waterproof system, finished with tongue-and-groove ceilings, channel water away from raised decks and convert the space below into a dry, usable living or storage area.

Beyond decks and covers, the company builds complete outdoor living spaces. These include patios in stamped concrete, natural stone, pavers, and composite, along with outdoor kitchens, outdoor bars, firepits and fireplaces, gazebos, and carports, each designed as an extension of the deck and cover work that anchors the business.

Over its fifteen years, the company has built a record of industry recognition. Colorado Custom Covers and Decks holds the Deckorators Certified Elite designation and serves as a ProWood Ambassador, credentials tied to training in the materials it installs most often. The company has received North American Deck and Railing Association awards in 2022, 2023, 2024, and 2025, and was named Deckorators Deck Specialist of the Year. It maintains an A+ rating with the Better Business Bureau and includes three-dimensional design renderings, two-dimensional floor plans, and permit drawings as part of its consultation process.

"Reaching fifteen years is less about the number than about the work behind it," Moeller said. "Every project we complete in these communities is something neighbors can see and stand on, and that is what has kept the company growing."

Colorado Custom Covers and Decks continues to serve Morrison and the surrounding Denver foothills from its location on Plateau Cir. More information is available at coloradocustomcoversanddecks.com.
