

Woodridge Deck & Gazebo Co. Marks 3,000 Custom Deck and Gazebo Builds

June 25, 2026

SCHAUMBURG, IL - June 25, 2026 -

Schaumburg, Illinois. Woodridge Deck & Gazebo Co., a family-owned custom deck and gazebo builder, has completed more than 3,000 outdoor construction projects across the Chicago northwest suburbs as it enters its 29th year in business. The company, founded in 1997 and owned by Eric Hoffman, reached the milestone while keeping a focused specialty in custom decks and gazebos rather than expanding into general remodeling.

A central part of the company's approach is a walk-in showroom at 2246 Palmer Dr #101 in Schaumburg, an arrangement that remains uncommon in the deck-building trade, where many contractors operate from a vehicle rather than a fixed location. The showroom allows homeowners across the northwest suburbs to examine composite boards, railing samples, gazebo models, and pergola components in person before construction begins. It operates around the clock by appointment, with weekend appointments available on request.

Each project follows an in-house process that begins with a design consultation and moves through 2D floor plans, 3D renderings, foundation work, permit acquisition through the relevant municipality, and framing completed by the company's carpenters. The drawings and documentation required for local permits are prepared during the planning stage, so the finished structure matches the approved design.

According to owner Eric Hoffman, the company's growth has come from depth rather than breadth. "We have stayed focused on decks and gazebos for nearly three decades, and the showroom lets homeowners see and handle the materials before they decide on a design," said Hoffman.

Decks remain the core of the business. The company builds residential and commercial decks in configurations that include platform, raised, multi-level, freestanding, rooftop, pool, curved, cantilevered, screened, and covered structures, along with wheelchair ramps, rebuilds, and full new-deck construction. Decking materials range from pressure-treated wood and softwoods such as cedar and redwood to exotic hardwoods, composite decking, and cellular PVC. Framing systems are built with wood, steel, aluminum, composite, or pressure-treated structural lumber, depending on the design and the site conditions.

Woodridge Deck & Gazebo Co. holds TimberTech Platinum certification and Deckorators Certified Elite status, and is accredited by the Better Business Bureau with an A-plus rating. The company works with composite and PVC product lines that include TimberTech, Trex, Fiberon, and Deckorators, and its team carries more than 100 years of combined trade experience.

Beneath the deck surface, the company installs underdeck water-management systems and skirting that turn the area below a raised deck into a dry, usable space. Finishing details include railing systems in wood, composite, glass, cable, and metal, along with integrated low-voltage lighting for post caps, stairs, and railings.

Gazebos, the company's other founding specialty, are built in Victorian, traditional, modern, Asian-inspired, and custom styles, in layouts that include octagon, oval, and rectangle, with roof profiles such as pagoda, bell, classic, and curved. The same design and construction methods extend to related outdoor structures, including pergolas, sunrooms, porches, and pavilions, as well as outdoor kitchens, firepits, and privacy screens that form part of a larger outdoor living space.

Completed projects are covered by a ten-year structural guarantee, a three-year workmanship warranty, and a one-year lumber warranty, with manufacturer material warranties applying to qualifying products.
