Jucebox Local Marketing Partners, a marketing firm specializing in digital marketing and website design for business professionals, has announced the completion of a new website for Bingham Law. The website was commissioned in order to communicate the changing focus of the law firm on estate planning and also due to their move to a new location.

Kim Bingham with the legal firm states, "Our new custom website features mobile responsive design, which we feel our clients will find very helpful."

Bingham states that those interested can see the new website for themselves at <http://binghamestatelaw.com/>.

Jucebox Local Marketing Partners offers a number of services, including website design, to help businesses better reach their own customers. The company states that having an amateur looking website is the best way to run off customers and ensure that they land in the arms of the competition.

Rebekah Richards, the Owner of Jucebox says, "We've been in this business long enough to know that if your website isn't up to par, you aren't going to reach the people that you want to offer your products or services to. You need a website that is going to grab their attention."

The company explains that a website is a storefront, particularly for businesses that don't have a traditional office or store, and that visitors to a website need to be able to find what they're looking for quickly and easily. By offering mobile responsible web design, Jucebox states that they are catering to today's smartphone minded consumers. The company uses the WordPress platform to build mobile responsive websites.

Bingham states that this is just what they've done for the firm. Those interested in learning more about the law firm can also visit them on their Facebook page at <https://www.facebook.com/binghamstatelaw/?fref=ts>.

Jucebox states that they offer a wide range of services designed to help businesses target and reach customers. They state that from website design to local marketing, they can assist those who need an effective way of reaching their target audience.
