McDougall Law Firm Announces $1.2 Million Settlement in Construction Accident Case

July 01, 2026

July 01, 2026 -
McDougall Law Firm has announced a $1.2 million settlement for a construction worker who sustained severe injuries at a job site in South Carolina. The settlement represents one of multiple cases exceeding $1 million that the firm has resolved for clients injured in workplace accidents.

The case involved complex liability issues typical of construction accident claims, where multiple parties, including contractors, subcontractors, and equipment manufacturers, may share responsibility for workplace injuries. The McDougall Law Firm, LLC Personal Injury Lawyer team at the firm conducted an extensive investigation to identify liable parties and document the extent of the client's injuries and damages.

Construction sites across South Carolina present significant hazards, including falls from heights, equipment malfunctions, and structural failures. According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, construction workers face one of the highest rates of workplace injuries among all industries. Workers in Beaufort, Bluffton, and Hilton Head often encounter challenges navigating the legal complexities following workplace accidents, particularly when determining liability extends beyond their direct employer.

"Construction accident cases require comprehensive investigation to identify all responsible parties and document the full extent of damages," stated J. Olin McDougall, II, founding attorney at McDougall Law Firm. "These cases often involve multiple insurance policies and competing interests. Our role is to ensure injured workers receive compensation that reflects their medical expenses, lost wages, and long-term impacts of their injuries."

The firm has resolved several cases with settlements exceeding $1 million, including a $2.5 million settlement, a $2 million settlement, a $1.5 million product liability verdict, and a $1,158,812 trucking accident recovery. These results reflect the firm's experience handling complex personal injury cases throughout South Carolina.

As a Beaufort Workers' Compensation Lawyer, the firm handles both workers' compensation claims and third-party liability cases. Construction workers may pursue claims beyond standard workers' compensation benefits when negligence by parties other than their direct employer contributes to workplace injuries. This dual approach allows injured workers to seek comprehensive compensation for their injuries.

J. Olin McDougall, II has received recognition, including 15 years of Super Lawyers listings, Best Attorneys of America Lifetime Charter Member status, and membership in the Multi-Million Dollar Advocates Forum. The firm has also received recognition from TrustAnalytica as a Top 10 Bluffton Personal Injury Lawyer.

McDougall Law Firm maintains offices in Beaufort, Bluffton, Hilton Head, Hardeeville, Walterboro, Greenville, and Columbia. The firm represents clients in personal injury cases, including car accidents, truck accidents, motorcycle accidents, construction site accidents, workplace injuries, medical malpractice, mass tort claims, and nursing home abuse cases throughout South Carolina. The firm provides consultations, including virtual evaluations for clients unable to visit office locations.
