May 09, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

SEO Service London recently rolled out a new suite of services, designed to help businesses to boost their search engine rankings. In addition to traditional SEO services, the company is now providing SEO training to businesses with their own digital marketing departments, as well as ranking packages and YouTube video creation services.

"We've decided to begin offering an entire suite of SEO services, which we feel will be very beneficial to our clientele," says Sam Adodra, owner of SEO Service London.

The company will also be providing website development services, which Adodra states are very important for any business that wants to enjoy the benefits of an online presence. More about the new suite of services that the company is offering can be seen on their official website at <http://www.seoservicelondon.org>.

Adodra says that not many businesses are aware of what exactly SEO entails or how to properly use it to their advantage. He adds that companies need a better understanding of good SEO practices and what will work for their specific needs.

"Not all needs are alike," Adodra states. "Years ago, SEO simply entailed putting as many relevant keywords into your copy so that search engines would pull up your page just because of those keywords. Today, however, there are hundreds of other things to consider. Keywords, like they were used in the original days of SEO, are no longer a thing."

Adodra says that while keywords are still valid, many companies, particularly those that are not in touch with changing technologies, may be hurting their chances of achieving higher page rankings because they are falling back onto the old ways of doing things. In some cases, these companies could even be penalized by search engines.

SEO Service London provides a clearer understanding of SEO practices, and Adodra states that they can help businesses to take full advantage of all that good SEO has to offer. Those interested in learning more can connect with the company on their official SEO Service London Facebook page, where they also discuss new services that they plan to roll out in the future.
