Based in London, England, London X City is a new online magazine that provides a wealth of information on a number of topics. The magazine reports on everything, from sports to dating and cooking.

According to Chloe, a spokesperson for the new magazine, they have several reporters available who are writing on a wide range of topics. "There is definitely something for everyone," Chloe says.

On the London X City website, readers will find celebrity news and highlights as well as fashion and a wealth of other topics. The magazine states that they want to provide something for all of their readers to enjoy.

There are several celebrity categories, including the latest celebrity news. Other topics include fashion for both men and women, health and beauty, and wellness categories, where readers will find weight loss tips as well as general wellness information.

Finance is a popular topic according to Chloe. "We've got quite a few finance topics, and cover everyone from teenagers to baby boomers and retirees. There is something in here that can help anyone with their money woes, saving up for college, or generally learning how to spend less and save more."

The magazine states that for men, their news and sports sections are quite popular, and that they offer updated information on the latest games and players. For women, topics are health and beauty as well as finance, which Chloe states may come as a surprise.

"You wouldn't expect women to be more into finances than men, but they really enjoy the articles that we have posted," the magazine spokesperson states.

London X City is now live and available for viewing. The magazine states that anyone can visit the site and read through the information that they have posted. They state that they strive to keep fresh topics available, and to offer the most recent news regarding celebrities, sports, or general topics.

Those interested in learning more or in reading through the categories that the magazine currently has published can visit them on their official website. The magazine states that they will regularly publish new content and hope that their readers will visit often.
