

GovernmentAuction.com, LLC Expands Online Marketplace with Buy Now Store for Government Auction Properties

July 27, 2026

Los Angeles, California - July 27, 2026 -

GovernmentAuction.com, LLC has expanded its online marketplace by introducing Buy Now purchasing alongside its established auction platform, providing buyers with additional options for acquiring undeveloped land throughout the United States.

The expansion represents a significant milestone for the company, which has traditionally connected buyers with property through online auctions. The new Government Auction Buy Now Store allows purchasers to acquire selected properties immediately without participating in the bidding process, streamlining transactions for those seeking a more direct purchasing experience.

Government Auction specializes in offering undeveloped land across multiple states, serving buyers interested in recreational, rural, and off-grid properties. The company's marketplace features properties ranging from small lots to large acreages in states including Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Hawaii, Missouri, Nevada, New Mexico, Texas, Utah, and Wyoming.

"The addition of Buy Now purchasing reflects our ongoing commitment to improving the customer experience and expanding access to undeveloped land through innovative online purchasing options," said Ray L. Perry, Marketing Director at Government Auction. "This expansion allows us to serve a broader range of buyers while maintaining the quality and variety of properties our customers have come to expect."

The dual-platform approach enables the company to accommodate different buyer preferences and purchasing strategies. While some customers prefer the competitive nature and potential value found through auctions, others seek the certainty and immediacy that Buy Now purchasing provides. This flexibility positions Government Auction to better serve the diverse needs of land buyers across the country.

The expanded marketplace maintains the company's focus on transparency and accessibility. Properties listed through both the auction platform and Buy Now store include detailed information such as acreage, location details, and property descriptions. Buyers can filter available properties by state, size, and other criteria to find land that meets their specific requirements.

The introduction of Buy Now purchasing comes as demand for undeveloped land continues to grow among buyers seeking recreational properties, future building sites, and rural retreats. Government Auction's expansion addresses this demand by providing multiple pathways to property ownership through a single online marketplace.

Undeveloped Land for Sale through the platform includes properties suitable for various uses, from recreational camping to potential future development. The company's inventory spans diverse geographic regions and terrain types, offering opportunities for buyers with different land use goals and preferences.

Government Auction continues to evolve its online marketplace to meet changing buyer needs and preferences. The addition of Buy Now purchasing alongside the traditional Government Auction format demonstrates the company's adaptability and commitment to providing comprehensive land acquisition solutions.
