August 04, 2026

Dallas, TX - August 04, 2026 -

Dinardo Tree Care, a certified arborist service based in Dallas, Texas, announces the expansion of its comprehensive tree care services across multiple North Texas communities, emphasizing adherence to ANSI A300 Tree Care Standards to ensure professional quality and safety in all tree maintenance operations.

The company, certified by the International Society of Arboriculture (ISA) with certification number TX-4666A, now provides enhanced service coverage throughout Dallas, Highland Park, Preston Hollow, Lake Highlands, Lakewood, Coppell, and Highland Village. This expansion addresses the growing demand for professional tree care services as property owners increasingly recognize the importance of proper tree maintenance for both safety and property value.

"As an arborist lakewood dallas residents have trusted for years, we understand the unique challenges that North Texas weather presents to tree health," said Jared Dinardo, ISA Certified Arborist and owner of Dinardo Tree Care. "Following ANSI A300 standards ensures that every service we provide meets the highest industry benchmarks, which are recognized as the final authority in the US Civil Court system."

The comprehensive service offerings include tree pruning, tree and stump removal, deep root fertilization, air spading, storm damage recovery, tree support systems, tree healthcare and diagnosis, insect and disease control, water management, and tree trimming. Each service follows strict protocols established by the American National Standards Institute to guarantee proper technique and tree health preservation.

North Texas trees face particular challenges from extreme weather conditions, including intense summer heat, periodic droughts, and severe storm events. Professional arborist services have become essential for maintaining tree health and preventing property damage from weakened or diseased trees. The expansion allows more property owners to access certified expertise in tree care management.

As a highland village arborist, the company has observed increasing awareness among property owners about the importance of preventive tree care. Regular professional maintenance can prevent costly emergency removals and protect surrounding structures from damage caused by falling branches or unstable trees.

"Property owners are beginning to understand that tree care is not just about aesthetics but about safety and long-term property investment," added Dinardo. "Our organic treatment methods and proven techniques support the natural health and wellness of trees while addressing immediate concerns about structural integrity and disease management."

The company specializes in both commercial and residential properties, providing customized care plans based on specific tree species, soil conditions, and environmental factors unique to each location. Air spading techniques help address soil compaction issues common in urban and suburban settings, while deep root fertilization ensures trees receive essential nutrients despite challenging growing conditions.

Storm damage recovery services have become particularly vital as North Texas experiences increasingly severe weather events. Professional assessment and treatment following storm damage can often save trees that might otherwise require removal, preserving mature landscaping and maintaining property values.

Dinardo Tree Care maintains its commitment to all-natural tree care methods whenever possible, combining traditional arborist expertise with modern diagnostic tools and treatment options. The company's approach focuses on promoting long-term tree health rather than simply addressing immediate symptoms, ensuring sustainable landscape management for North Texas properties.
