

Resurgence Behavioral Health Expands Addiction Recovery Education With New Resource on Medication-Assisted Treatment

July 14, 2026

JURUPA VALLEY, CA - July 14, 2026 -

Resurgence Behavioral Health has published a new educational resource explaining how Medication-Assisted Treatment (MAT) supports recovery from opioid and alcohol use disorders when combined with comprehensive behavioral healthcare. The newly released article explores the role of FDA-approved medications alongside counseling, behavioral therapies, and ongoing clinical support, providing patients and families with research-based information about one of the most widely recognized approaches to addiction treatment.

The publication reflects growing awareness of evidence-based treatment strategies for substance use disorders. According to the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA), Medication-Assisted Treatment combines approved medications with counseling and behavioral therapies to provide a whole-patient approach to treating substance use disorders. The National Institute on Drug Abuse also reports that medications such as buprenorphine, methadone, and naltrexone can reduce cravings, improve treatment retention, and lower the risk of overdose when incorporated into individualized recovery plans under medical supervision.

The educational article explains that Medication-Assisted Treatment is not intended to replace counseling or long-term recovery planning. Instead, it serves as one component within a comprehensive treatment strategy that addresses the physical, psychological, and behavioral aspects of addiction. By reducing withdrawal symptoms and cravings, MAT may help patients participate more consistently in therapy, develop healthier coping strategies, and remain engaged throughout treatment. The resource also explains that treatment decisions involving medication should always be made following comprehensive medical and psychiatric evaluations performed by qualified healthcare professionals.

According to information published on the Resurgence Behavioral Health website, the Riverside treatment center offers a broad continuum of addiction and behavioral healthcare services. Programs include medically supervised detoxification, residential drug rehab programs, outpatient treatment, intensive outpatient services, medication-assisted treatment for eligible patients, dual diagnosis drug rehab, individual counseling, group therapy, family therapy, relapse prevention planning, aftercare services, psychiatric care, and evidence-based therapeutic approaches such as Cognitive Behavioral Therapy, Dialectical Behavior Therapy, motivational interviewing, and trauma-informed care. The organization also incorporates holistic drug rehab programs that may include wellness-focused services designed to complement traditional behavioral therapies as part of individualized recovery planning.

The newly published resource explains that Medication-Assisted Treatment may be recommended for patients recovering from opioid or alcohol use disorders when clinically appropriate. Comprehensive evaluations allow treatment teams to determine whether MAT should be incorporated alongside counseling and behavioral therapies based on each patient's medical history, substance use patterns, mental health needs, and recovery goals. The article emphasizes that individualized treatment planning remains central to evidence-based addiction care because no single treatment approach is appropriate for every patient.

Behavioral health organizations continue to recognize the importance of integrated treatment for co-occurring disorders. SAMHSA recommends coordinated care for patients experiencing both substance use disorders and mental health conditions. At the same time, the National Institute on Drug Abuse notes that successful recovery frequently involves addressing multiple aspects of physical and emotional health simultaneously. Comprehensive treatment programs that combine medication management, psychotherapy, relapse prevention, and continuing care may improve treatment engagement and support sustained recovery outcomes.

People searching online for drug rehab near me, drug addiction treatment centers, residential drug rehab programs, dual diagnosis drug rehab, evidence-based drug rehab, or holistic drug rehab programs often seek treatment providers capable of delivering multiple levels of care within one recovery continuum. Resurgence Behavioral Health's latest educational resource explains that Medication-Assisted Treatment represents one option among several evidence-based interventions available to patients following a thorough clinical assessment. Treatment recommendations remain individualized and evolve as patients progress through each phase of recovery.

The Riverside treatment center serves patients throughout Riverside, Rubidoux, Pedley, Glen Avon, Mira Loma, Home Gardens, La Sierra, Arlanza, Arlington, and surrounding communities seeking comprehensive behavioral healthcare. By expanding its educational library with clinically informed resources, Resurgence Behavioral Health seeks to improve public understanding of addiction treatment, medication-assisted recovery, co-occurring disorders, and evidence-based behavioral healthcare. Educational content supported by established clinical research can help patients and families better understand available treatment options while encouraging informed discussions with qualified healthcare professionals.

The article also explains that long-term recovery extends beyond the completion of detoxification or residential treatment. Many patients continue participating in outpatient therapy, relapse prevention planning, peer support, family counseling, and ongoing psychiatric care following initial stabilization. Regular clinical evaluations help treatment teams adjust recovery plans as patients transition through different levels of care, reinforcing progress while addressing evolving behavioral health needs.

Resurgence Behavioral Health continues to expand its educational resources covering addiction recovery, evidence-based treatment approaches, dual diagnosis care, medication-assisted treatment, and comprehensive behavioral healthcare. The newly published article examining the role of Medication-Assisted Treatment provides patients, families, healthcare professionals, and referral sources with research-supported information that explains how medications may complement counseling and behavioral therapies during recovery. By offering educational content alongside a comprehensive continuum of clinical services, Resurgence Behavioral Health contributes to greater public awareness of effective addiction treatment while supporting informed decisions for people seeking professional behavioral healthcare.
