July 16, 2026

DEPEW, NY - July 16, 2026 -

Emerald Heating & Cooling has launched The Emerald Heating Guide to Ductless Systems, a comprehensive video guidebook designed to help Buffalo homeowners navigate the complexities of ductless heat pump technology and make informed decisions about their home comfort systems.

The educational series addresses critical questions homeowners face when considering ductless systems, covering topics from installation quality and system performance to available rebates and selecting appropriate solutions for specific home configurations. The initiative represents a shift toward consumer education in the HVAC industry, providing practical information without sales pressure.

The inaugural video in the series focuses on installation quality, a factor that significantly impacts long-term system performance, efficiency, and reliability. The content emphasizes that selecting qualified installation professionals can be as crucial as choosing the equipment itself.

"Most homeowners don't realize how critical the installation of their ductless heat pump is?it's actually the number one decision they have to make because their future comfort depends on a professional installation," said Carrie Sheehan, Co-Founder of Emerald Heating & Cooling. "Just about every home can benefit from a ductless heat pump, whether homeowners want year-round comfort from one system, flexibility of design, or want to save money with a super high-efficiency heat pump system."

The video series comes at a time when many Buffalo area residents are exploring energy-efficient alternatives to traditional heating and cooling systems. Ductless mini split heat pumps have gained popularity due to their energy efficiency, improved indoor air quality capabilities, and design flexibility. The technology allows for zone-specific temperature control without the need for extensive ductwork.

Emerald Heating & Cooling, a family-owned and operated HVAC contractor based in Depew, New York, specializes in Ductless Mini Split Heat Pump Installation Buffalo residents have come to rely on for both heating and cooling needs. The company maintains certifications as an authorized dealer for major brands including Amana, Daikin, and Lennox.

The educational initiative also addresses financial considerations, including information about NYSERDA rebates and other incentives available to homeowners who choose qualifying ductless heat pump systems. The company assists customers in identifying and securing applicable rebates, potentially reducing the overall investment required for system upgrades.

The video guidebook format allows homeowners to access information at their convenience, reviewing technical details and installation considerations at their own pace.
