Eagle Eye Strategies, based in Santa Monica, California, has announced a new suite of online marketing services. The company offers a wide range of services, designed to help promote businesses and lead them into success.

George Kihara, owner of Eagle Eye Strategies, states, "Our experience alone should make you feel secure in knowing that we can market your business effectively. We assisted Like A Boss Girl in getting more than one million fans on their Facebook fan page, and we can do the same for any business."

The company, which can be seen at http://www.eagleeyestrategies.com, provides website design services, as well as reputation management, proven to convert campaign strategies, and much more. Kihara states that their goal is to ensure that websites receive traffic that is converting, offering them more sales and higher revenue streams.

"We don't just view our clients as customers," says Kihara. "We view them as partners. We're in this for the long haul, and want to work with our clients for years, seeing them become more successful than they ever imagined possible."

More about the complete list of services that the company is offering can be seen on their official website at http://www.eagleeyestrategies.com/pr. Kihara states that they can help businesses with virtually any type of marketing service, and ensure that they have a solid online reputation, which in itself could net them much more in the way of income.

The company urges those interested to contact them to schedule complimentary call, where they will speak with the business owner about their business, their current marketing strategies, and their goals for the future. Kihara states that instead of using gimmicks and otherwise shady techniques, Eagle Eye Strategies uses real methods that work to provide proven results.

The online marketing company states that they offer years of experience in their industry, along with a passion for what they do, which is why Kihara says they have been successful themselves over the past few years. He states that their goal is to assist their clients in seeing the same kind of success with their own businesses.
