July 17, 2026 -

Quality Pro Painting announces the expansion of their specialized limewash and whitewash services for residential properties throughout Northwest Arkansas, addressing a common misconception among homeowners about proper brick surface treatment.

The Springdale-based painting company has identified a growing trend where property owners searching for pressure washing or power washing solutions for their brick surfaces actually require professional limewash application. The company now offers comprehensive surface treatment that combines thorough pressure wash brick preparation with expert lime washing techniques to achieve lasting, breathable finishes.

"Many homeowners believe they need to pressure wash brick surfaces repeatedly when what they really need is a proper limewash treatment," said Obed Posadas, owner of Quality Pro Painting. "We perform complete surface preparation through power washing, followed by professional limewash application that not only beautifies but also protects the brick while allowing it to breathe naturally."

The specialized service addresses the unique requirements of brick and masonry surfaces common in Northwest Arkansas homes. Unlike standard paint applications, limewash creates a mineral finish that penetrates the brick surface while maintaining its natural texture and allowing moisture to escape. This breathable finish prevents common issues associated with traditional paint, including peeling, blistering, and moisture damage.

Quality Pro Painting Lime washing services include comprehensive surface preparation through pressure washing and power wash brick techniques to remove dirt, mildew, and loose material. Following preparation, technicians apply multiple coats of limewash or whitewash, depending on the desired aesthetic and surface requirements. The company also offers related mineral paint applications, including Venetian plaster and Venetian glaze options for interior surfaces seeking similar mineral-based finishes.

The process differs significantly from standard painting methods. Lime wash applications require specific weather conditions and application techniques to ensure proper adhesion and curing. The mineral-based coating chemically bonds with the brick surface, creating a durable finish that ages gracefully over time. For homeowners seeking to whitewash brick surfaces, the company provides consultation on achieving the desired opacity and texture.

"The key to successful limewash brick application lies in proper preparation and understanding the material's unique properties," added Posadas. "Our team has developed expertise in both the power washing preparation phase and the specialized application techniques required for these mineral finishes."

The service expansion comes as architectural trends in Northwest Arkansas increasingly favor natural, breathable finishes over traditional paint applications. Homeowners in Bentonville, Rogers, Fayetteville, Springdale, and Bella Vista can now access professional lime washing services that combine traditional techniques with modern application methods.
