MD Factor, a business based in San Mateo, CA, that specializes in innovative products for the skin, hair and overall wellness, has introduced their new hair growth supplement. The MD Nutri Hair product, which is designed to provide thicker and healthier hair while preventing loss of hair, is now available through the company's Amazon seller page. Dr. Susan Lin, who is a board-certified physician, surgeon and expert in medical aesthetics, is the developer of the MD Factor products.

Dr. Lin says, "Because I had hair problems, and was unsatisfied with current choices, I was motivated to develop simple and nature-inspired products specifically for this important issue."

Dr. Lin, who established the MD Laser and Cosmetics Center in San Mateo, CA, is a graduate of the Boston University School Six Year Medical Program. She had an NIH Cancer Research Fellowship and she finished her postdoctoral training in obstetrics and gynecology. Since 2004, she has been an expert reviewer for the Medical Board of California. She also belongs to various organizations that focus on Obstetrics/Gynecology, aesthetic medicine, laser medicine, antiaging medicine, and surgery. Only recently, the US Commercial Service presented her with an Export Achievement Certificate. This is an award that indicates a business has substantial achievements in the global marketplace.

The company indicates that MD Nutri Hair, is one of the few hair supplements that do not contain hormones nor drugs. They explain that the product works by preventing the production of dihydrotestosterone (DHT), so that regrowth of hair is stimulated in both men and women. They also stressed that it contains a sufficient amount of biotin, which serves to repair any damaged hair, strengthen existing hair strands, and encourage faster growth of hair.

MD Factor also points out that MD Nutri Hair has been proven not to have any side effects. They explain that it has the right amount of antioxidants, vitamins and minerals that contribute to the achievement not just of healthy hair but also of healthy nails and skin. Furthermore, they stressed that the ingredients used are supported by independent clinical studies.

MD Factor encourages those who have concerns about their hair, nails and skin to take a look at their website and their products.
