

All Around Fence & Decks Announces Vinyl Fencing Maintenance Guidance

July 13, 2026

PASADENA, MD - July 13, 2026 -

All Around Fence & Decks, a family-owned fencing company serving Anne Arundel County, has released guidance for homeowners on vinyl privacy fencing, the option more homeowners are choosing when they want a finished look without a recurring maintenance routine.

Vinyl and wood privacy fencing together make up roughly 60 percent of all residential installations in the region. And vinyl draws a specific type of homeowner: one who wants the same clean sightline as a wood privacy fence without staining or sealing it every two to three years. All Around Fence & Decks has installed vinyl fencing across Anne Arundel County for more than 25 years, holding Maryland Home Improvement Commission license MHIC #97820 and an A+ rating from the Better Business Bureau. Its vinyl panels are built with steel-reinforced rails, which keep long fence runs from sagging between posts, and a fade-resistant finish available in white, tan, khaki, two-tone, gray and black. The material holds its color and shape through Anne Arundel County's humid summers and freeze-thaw winters without the upkeep wood requires.

Every vinyl installation follows the same on-site process the company uses across materials. An owner measures the property in person and accounts for local setbacks, slope and soil conditions before scheduling the work, a step the company calls its Maryland Measure Method, then requests underground utility locates through the 811 call-before-you-dig service prior to digging. In homeowners association (HOA) communities, where vinyl's uniform, factory-finished appearance often simplifies design review compared with a stained or painted material, the company handles the HOA application and inspector coordination as part of the project. Most vinyl privacy fence installations take one to five days on site, depending on the length of the fence line.

Vinyl's solid, factory-finished panels have also made it a common choice for the company's pool fencing service, since the material holds up to pool-deck humidity and chlorine exposure without repainting. A recent example includes a 6-foot white vinyl privacy fence installed around a backyard play area and storage shed, chosen so the family would not need to repaint or restain a wood fence near where children play. Requests for that combination, a taller privacy line around pools, play equipment or storage areas, have become one of the more common vinyl configurations the company installs. Homeowners can also request photo-logged progress updates during a vinyl installation, from post set through the finished panel run.

"Wood gives you a classic look, but you're staining or sealing it every couple of years to keep it looking right," said Jeremy Verhoef, owner of All Around Fence & Decks. "Vinyl is the fence people install once and mostly forget about, and that trade-off matters most around a pool, a play set or anywhere kids and pets are outside constantly. We're just seeing more people make that trade on purpose instead of settling for it after the fact."
