

Sold Out Hammer Toe/Finger Cushions By DenadaDance Now Back In Stock

May 18, 2016

May 18, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Minden, NV business DenadaDance is happy to announce that their hammer toe / finger cushions are now back in stock. These items sold out in February after an unprecedented demand was experienced. The company apologizes to those who have been disappointed and points out that they have increased their stock to ensure it does not happen again.

DenadaDance's Elena Vera says: "We really didn't anticipate that our product would become so popular that fast. We had what we believed was sufficient stock for the first six months of 2016, but we actually sold out in February. We have now replenished and increased our stock so that no other customers are left disappointed. Our sincere apologies for that."

The toe and finger cushions have been designed with comfort and convenience in mind. They can be cut to size for toes, or left long for fingers. They have been designed to provide instant relief from pain and are even recommended by surgeons, as one review on Amazon has demonstrated. The gentleman in question had significant nerve damage and experienced dramatic positive results after wearing the cushions.

Since its initial release, the product has received consistent positive reviews. People regularly comment on how easy it is to use the cushions, and how quickly they notice the benefits. Additionally, people have commented on the fact that they are so multifunctional, and an essential item in anyone's medicine cabinet. One reviewer even noticed that they can help to prevent paper cuts when opening mail.

Now that the product is back in stock, it continues to sell very well. DenadaDance is committed to creating items that increase people's comfort and overall quality of life. "People often don't realize just how debilitating it is to have an injury to the feet or hands," adds Elena Vera. "We want to make sure that our customers can continue to enjoy their overall quality of life."

There are a number of other DenadaDance foot care products available. The company, which has a background in dance, is always looking for products that help to avoid pain to the hands and feet, which is very common in dancers and other athletes.
