

Algo Trading Space Launches Premium Expert Advisor Setup Service

July 14, 2026

ELIN PELIN, BG - July 14, 2026 -

Algo Trading Space, an algorithmic trading education and infrastructure platform operated by EA Academy LTD, announced the launch of Premium, a guided expert advisor setup service for investors seeking to deploy automated trading systems on their own brokerage accounts. The service became available this month and is accessible through the company's website.

The Premium program pairs clients with the Algo Trading Space team for a structured onboarding process that includes portfolio selection, licensing, and configuration support. Rather than managing client funds directly, the company provides expert advisors, individual software licenses, optimized set files, and step-by-step guidance so that clients can build and operate their own trading infrastructure while retaining full control of their capital and accounts.

The onboarding structure spans up to four guided calls over a period of two to four weeks, beginning with a discovery session to assess a client's goals, risk tolerance, and drawdown expectations. During a second call, the team presents risk-adjusted portfolio options drawn from its library of tested expert advisors, each accompanied by correlation data and expected performance ranges. Clients then complete a self-paced build phase covering broker account setup, virtual private server hosting, and MetaTrader configuration before a final activation call confirms the infrastructure is ready for live trading.

Three service tiers are available, structured around trading capital ranges and the number of live accounts a client intends to run. The entry tier is aimed at clients starting with a smaller trading balance and includes a portfolio of three licensed expert advisors configured for a single live account. Higher tiers extend to larger capital ranges, additional accounts, and expanded portfolios of up to ten expert advisors, along with extended access to the company's VIP Club. Each tier includes a portfolio kit of licensed expert advisors, guided setup calls, and integration with Account Tracker, a monitoring tool developed by the company that allows clients to track performance across their accounts in real time.

According to the company, expert advisors offered through Premium are drawn from its internal strategy library and undergo a multi-stage validation process before being made available to clients. The program supports both the MetaTrader 4 and MetaTrader 5 platforms, with configuration guidance adjusted to match whichever platform a client's broker provides.

"The goal of Premium is to give experienced investors a clear, guided path to building their own algorithmic trading infrastructure without asking them to hand over control of their capital," said Petko, co-founder of Algo Trading Space. "Every account, license, and execution decision stays with the client from the first call through live activation."

The company describes Premium as a setup and guidance service rather than a fund management arrangement. Algo Trading Space does not execute trades on behalf of clients or hold access to client accounts at any point in the process. The company states that trading, including the use of automated systems, carries risk of loss and that past performance figures published on its website are not indicative of future results.

The Premium service is open to applicants internationally, provided they can open an account with a compatible broker and maintain a stable server environment for automated trading. Interested parties can apply for an initial onboarding call through the Algo Trading Space website.

Algo Trading Space is operated by EA Academy LTD, a company registered in Bulgaria. The platform offers a range of resources for traders using automated strategies, including a trading academy, published live trading statistics, and a library of licensed expert advisors.
