

Universal Wellness Roscoe Village Founder Dr. John Reuter Earns Pediatric and Family Chiropractic Care Certification

July 16, 2026

CHICAGO, IL - July 16, 2026 -

Universal Wellness Roscoe Village founder Dr. John Reuter, DC, has earned a Certificate of Proficiency in Pediatric and Family Chiropractic Care through The Pediatric Experience program in affiliation with Life University.

Dr. Reuter completed more than 60 hours of online coursework and 20 hours of in-person, hands-on training focused on neuro-tonal adjusting techniques. The certification supports expanded application of chiropractic methods for children and families. The clinic, situated in the Roscoe Village neighborhood of Chicago, continues to serve patients of all ages with natural, corrective care approaches.

Dr. Reuter, a Chicagoland native, first encountered the benefits of chiropractic care at age 13. He had faced severe allergies and symptoms of ADD and ADHD, which involved frequent allergy shots and prescribed medication. Following consistent chiropractic treatment, his allergies decreased substantially, his focus improved, and he discontinued the medications and shots. This personal experience directed him toward a career in chiropractic with the aim of assisting others through similar natural pathways.

He earned an undergraduate degree in kinesiology and pre-chiropractic studies from the University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire. He then received his Doctor of Chiropractic degree from Life University in Georgia. Dr. Reuter founded Universal Wellness Roscoe Village in October 2021, establishing a practice dedicated to individuals and families seeking non-invasive health support.

The clinic provides chiropractic adjustments that target spinal alignment to relieve discomfort, restore function, and facilitate the body's natural healing processes. Services address conditions including back pain, neck pain, headaches, migraines, and sciatica. Additional offerings include support for sports injury recovery, posture correction, wellness and preventive care, and integration of modalities such as SoftWave Therapy.

As the clinic continues its established services, the recent certification enhances Dr. Reuter's ability to apply specialized techniques for pediatric and family patients. Neuro-tonal adjusting methods emphasize gentle approaches suitable for younger individuals and family members.

Dr. John Reuter, DC, founder and chiropractor at Universal Wellness Roscoe Village, reflected on the achievement. "Completing the Pediatric Experience program has provided additional tools and insights for addressing the unique needs of children and families through precise, natural chiropractic methods" said Dr. Reuter.

Jasmine Cervantes, office manager at Universal Wellness Roscoe Village, commented on the clinic's direction. "Dr. Reuter's ongoing professional development supports the consistent quality of care that patients experience across all age groups" said Cervantes.

The team at Universal Wellness Roscoe Village includes Bryan, SoftWave technician with a Bachelor of Science in Kinesiology, certifications as a personal trainer and limited scope X-ray technologist, and specialized training in SoftWave Therapy. Litzy Gomez serves as chiropractic assistant with a Bachelor of Science in Integrated Health Studies and is pursuing a master's degree in health information management. Peggy acts as events assistant, coordinating community outreach.

Initial consultations at the clinic involve comprehensive health history reviews, assessments, and development of individualized plans. Progress is monitored regularly with adjustments made according to patient response. The practice emphasizes education, empowering patients to understand spinal health and participate actively in their wellness.

Universal Wellness Roscoe Village maintains operations centered on non-invasive techniques that prioritize root causes of discomfort. Services extend to families seeking support for various stages of life, including pediatric care informed by Dr. Reuter's additional training. The clinic participates in selected local events to share information on spinal health and preventive practices.

Dr. Reuter's kinesiology background informs attention to movement patterns and alignment. His doctoral education and recent certification reinforce principles of holistic, family-focused care. The founder remains actively involved in patient consultations and treatment oversight, maintaining the vision established when the clinic opened.

The practice serves residents of Chicago and surrounding areas in Cook County. It integrates various supportive therapies alongside chiropractic adjustments to address individual needs. Community engagement activities provide opportunities for residents to learn about options for managing health through established methods.

Universal Wellness Roscoe Village operates with a family-oriented philosophy. The addition of specialized pediatric training aligns with the clinic's commitment to serving patients across generations. Care plans are tailored to promote mobility, function, and overall well-being without reliance on medications or invasive procedures.

The certification represents continued professional growth for Dr. Reuter. It builds upon the foundational experiences that shaped his career path from patient to practitioner. Universal Wellness Roscoe Village applies these principles in daily service delivery, supporting patients in achieving improved health outcomes through natural corrective care.
