Chedall LLC, a business in Wilmington, Delaware, is highlighting the new campfire travel community website. This website has been designed to bring fellow campers and RVers together. They have also launched an E-magazine, which provides further information and knowledge to camping enthusiasts. The company is encouraging people to sign up to the community website on http://campfiretravel.com/community/.

David Hall from Chedall LLC says: "Camping and campfires give people a feeling of coziness and happiness. We want to bring together all those people who love that lifestyle, whether they are tent campers, wild campers, RV drivers, or any other type of camper. The community is a fantastic place for people to come together and share their own information and knowledge. The e-magazine, meanwhile, provides people with interesting tidbits of information on where to go, what to do, and more. Signing up to the community is totally free."

Those who join the campfire community at http://campfiretravel.com/community/ are also automatically enrolled in various competitions. They can vote for content and share their own, including photographs. Furthermore, they can chat with other campers and generally be part of a strong online community of like-minded individuals. The magazine is essentially a bonus, in which all that information is brought together in an easy to read way.

Chedall LLC has also helped Campfire Travel to launch their Facebook page. While having only recently been launched, it is already attracting a lot of attention. Through the page, the company aims to further grow their community and share the information they present. "We really want to encourage everyone to give the Facebook page a like," adds David Hall. "It is another opportunity to talk to other people who have been campfire camping and who want to share their own experiences. The camping season is well and truly upon us, so now is the time to start looking into where to go next."

The Facebook page is available through https://www.facebook.com/CampFire-Travel-1635923799999800/info/?tab=page_info. It provides links to the E-magazine, but also discusses things like campsite rules for RV riders, new sites in various parks, best places to go, and more.
