July 17, 2026

SARASOTA, FL - July 17, 2026 -

Campbell RV operates as an established full-service RV dealership and repair facility serving the Sarasota area. The company continues to provide sales, parts, and comprehensive service support as interest in RV lifestyles persists in Florida.

The dealership traces its involvement in the local automotive sector to the 1920s, with later generations shifting focus to recreational vehicles. Kevin Campbell began selling motorhomes and travel trailers in the early 1990s. The business opened its dedicated RV repair and service center in 2000 to address growing customer needs. Subsequent developments included new RV sales starting in 2005 and a Forest River dealership partnership in 2010. These steps reflect adaptation to market conditions while maintaining family ownership.

Service operations form a central part of Campbell RV's activities. The facility handles routine maintenance as well as more extensive repairs on various RV systems. Technicians work on chassis components, engines, drivelines, and coach interiors. Body shop capabilities cover collision damage and structural restoration, including water damage repairs. Roof work receives particular attention, with free inspections included in estimates. The center is equipped for both gas and diesel engine service, generator maintenance, and appliance repairs.

"Technicians at the service center hold factory training and certifications that qualify them for a wide range of RV repairs," said Charlie Bedor, Marketing Manager at Campbell RV. "This preparation allows the team to address issues efficiently whether they involve preventive maintenance or corrective work following incidents."

Bedor added, "Coordination with insurance providers and warranty administrators helps streamline the process for owners seeking repairs under covered policies."

The service center accepts most RV insurance and extended warranties. Indoor bays support controlled environments for detailed work. Authorized service status covers select chassis and appliance brands. Parts availability supports both in-house repairs and customer self-maintenance projects. These resources contribute to vehicle readiness for travel throughout Florida's variable seasons.

Additional offerings include consignment sales, where the dealership manages marketing and transaction details for owners seeking to sell pre-owned units. Financing options through established lender relationships accommodate different buyer circumstances. Inventory features new and used models from recognized manufacturers, with configurations suitable for families and other user groups.

Local business reporting has noted growth in RV market participation. Coverage in the Florida Business Observer referenced increased sales among various demographic segments at Campbell RV. The publication attributed part of the dealership's trajectory to operational enhancements and broader industry trends.

The company's physical facilities include updated showroom and office space occupied since 2015. This infrastructure supports integrated sales and service functions at a single location. Staff across departments draw on regional knowledge accumulated over decades of operation in Sarasota.

RV ownership involves ongoing attention to mechanical systems, seals, and structural elements. Service providers like Campbell RV address these requirements through scheduled work and responsive repairs. Florida's climate introduces factors such as humidity and temperature fluctuations that influence maintenance schedules. Preparation for active travel periods or storage intervals forms part of standard owner responsibilities.

Campbell RV's approach emphasizes documented procedures and trained personnel. Service records help track vehicle history for future reference. The combination of sales support, parts supply, and repair capabilities creates a centralized resource for area residents engaged with recreational vehicles.

As part of the broader Florida RV community, the dealership participates in the cycle of vehicle acquisition, use, maintenance, and potential resale. Its history provides context for current operations, connecting early family automotive roots to specialized RV expertise. Kevin and Wanda Campbell oversee the business, continuing a multi-generational tradition in the region.
