

Byerly RV Expands Climate-Controlled RV Storage Options for Midwest Owners

July 17, 2026

TROY, MO - July 17, 2026 -

Byerly RV has expanded its RV storage capabilities with premium climate-controlled indoor facilities alongside secure outdoor options. The development addresses the needs of RV owners in the Midwest who seek reliable year-round protection for their vehicles between trips or during periods of limited use.

The new indoor storage, part of recent facility investments, maintains controlled temperatures to shield RVs from humidity, extreme heat, and temperature fluctuations common in the region. Owners of motorhomes, travel trailers, fifth wheels, and camper vans can use valet services that allow drop-off and retrieval without having to maneuver large vehicles. Outdoor storage provides 24/7 access for those preferring quicker departure readiness.

RV storage forms an important component of ownership, particularly for those who travel seasonally or store units during off-peak months. Proper storage helps preserve interiors, prevent pest issues, and maintain mechanical systems. Byerly RV's on-site location next to its service center enables combined storage and maintenance packages, supporting operational readiness when owners prepare for outings.

Warren Patton, President and Owner of Byerly RV, said, "Our expanded storage solutions reflect the growing demand from customers who want convenient, protected options that keep their RVs in optimal condition. The proximity to our service team allows for seamless transitions between storage and road preparation."

The dealership's storage facilities integrate with its broader support services. Customers benefit from access to the largest RV service center in Missouri for inspections or repairs while units are stored. This setup minimizes downtime and supports consistent maintenance schedules recommended for all RVs.

Midwest weather patterns, including summer humidity and winter freezes, present specific challenges for stored recreational vehicles. Climate-controlled environments help mitigate risks such as mold, battery degradation, and tire damage. Secure, gated access and surveillance add layers of protection for owners who travel or live in areas with variable security considerations.

Byerly RV University classes include topics related to storage preparation and seasonal maintenance. These educational sessions provide owners with practical guidance on covering systems, checking seals, and documenting conditions before storage. The programs complement the physical storage infrastructure by equipping owners with knowledge for long-term vehicle care.

The company has invested significantly in its Eureka headquarters, including the addition of an 88,000 square foot indoor storage building. This expansion, completed in recent years, is among the largest of its kind in the area and aligns with the dealership's history of facility improvements to better serve the RV community.

As RV ownership continues to grow in the region, storage options play a key role in making the RV lifestyle more accessible for enthusiasts. Many owners maintain their units for weekend use or longer vacations but require secure places when not in transit. Comprehensive storage reduces the logistical burden and supports more frequent, spontaneous travel decisions, ultimately enhancing the overall RV experience for adventurers.

Byerly RV, established in 1948, is a third-generation family-owned dealership serving the St. Louis area. The Patton family has guided the company from its origins as a travel trailer manufacturer to a full-service operation recognized with multiple Top 50 Dealer Awards in North America. The dealership features extensive sales inventory, the largest RV service center and parts store in Missouri, rentals, and membership in the Priority RV Network for nationwide emergency support. Through ongoing investments in facilities and customer education via Byerly RV University, the company supports owners at every stage of the RV journey.
