Atlas Spinal Care, a clinic in Upland, CA, has highlighted a new piece of research meta-analysis published last month that has demonstrated that chiropractic care can help people who suffer from balance disorders and dizziness. Dr. Flory, from Atlas Spinal Care, has trained in order to be able to specialize in dizziness cases. He has specialized in restoring function to the head and neck.

Dr. Tymothy L. Flory himself says: "Having trauma to the neck and head is incredibly painful. What few people realize, however, is that it is also inextricably linked to dizziness and balanced disorders. A new piece of meta-analysis research has shown that chiropractic care can help address these problems, and I have now completed additional training to specifically address this."

The neck trauma research was a national study. It looked specifically at how chiropractic care can help to treat balance disorders and dizziness. The research, which looked at thousands of people who had experienced trauma to the neck and who suffered from dizziness and balance disorders, demonstrated that those who used chiropractic care benefited tremendously from the treatment. Dr. Flory wants to highlight this to enable people to regain their quality of life.

Atlas Spinal Care has been recognized as one of the top chiropractic offices in Upland, CA. They have received numerous positive reviews from their patients, who have noticed that their symptoms virtually disappeared following a period of care and who have regained their quality of life. The clinic also offers a free initial consultation, so that people can get to know what the procedure entails and whether or not they are a good candidate for care.

"Our mission is to restore health naturally and to enhance quality of life through gentle, proven, and highly effective spinal care," adds Dr. Tymothy Flory. "We do this by always putting the patients first, focusing specifically on their needs. We take on a team approach to all of our patients, ensuring that the services they receive are actually those that they need."

Those who have balance disorders or who experience dizziness and believe this to be as a result of neck trauma are encouraged to contact the clinic for further information.
