

Sunstar Construction & Remodeling Addresses Washington County's Home Renovation Needs Amid Regional Growth

August 04, 2026

ST. GEORGE, UT - August 04, 2026 -

Sunstar Construction & Remodeling reports increased demand for home renovation services as Washington County residents seek to adapt their existing properties to meet changing lifestyle needs and accommodate the region's rapid growth.

The St. George-based general contractor has observed a significant trend among homeowners choosing to renovate rather than relocate, driven by rising property values and limited housing inventory throughout Southern Utah. The company specializes in comprehensive remodeling projects that help residents maximize their current properties through strategic improvements, expanded living spaces, and modernized layouts.

"Washington County's growth has created unique challenges for longtime residents who want to stay in their communities while ensuring their homes meet contemporary needs," said Kevin Tatom, at Sunstar Construction. "We're seeing families transform outdated floor plans into open-concept living spaces, add home offices to accommodate remote work, and create multi-generational living arrangements that allow extended families to remain together."

The regional population surge has prompted many homeowners to reassess their properties' functionality and potential. Kitchen and bathroom remodels represent the most requested services, with homeowners prioritizing updated fixtures, improved storage solutions, and energy-efficient appliances that align with Utah's sustainability initiatives. The company maintains an in-house bathroom cabinet shop, enabling streamlined project timelines and enhanced quality control for these popular renovations.

Beyond aesthetic updates, structural modifications have become increasingly common as residents adapt to evolving household dynamics. Building additions provide extra square footage without the disruption of moving, while basement finishing projects create valuable living space for growing families or rental opportunities. The company's expertise in local building codes and climate considerations ensures these improvements withstand Southern Utah's unique environmental conditions.

The decision to renovate existing properties reflects broader economic and social factors affecting Washington County. Property appreciation has made moving within the area financially challenging for many families, while established neighborhood connections and proximity to schools, employment, and community resources make staying in place more attractive. Thoughtful renovations allow homeowners to capture their properties' increased value while maintaining community ties.

Sunstar Construction handles projects ranging from minor updates to complete home transformations, serving residential and commercial clients throughout Southern Utah, Southern Nevada, and Northern Arizona. The company's approach emphasizes transparent communication, detailed project planning, and adherence to established timelines, factors particularly important for families living in homes during renovation work.

The company maintains full licensing in Utah, Nevada, and Arizona, enabling comprehensive service delivery across the tri-state region. Their team combines traditional craftsmanship with modern construction methods, incorporating energy-efficient designs and sustainable practices into renovation projects.

Sunstar Construction & Remodeling operates from its St. George headquarters, providing general contracting, design-build services, and specialized renovation expertise to the Southern Utah market. The company's portfolio encompasses residential remodeling, commercial construction, tenant improvements, and new construction projects throughout the region.
