

HealthMateSauna Showcases Advanced Infrared Technology with Red Light Therapy Integration

August 25, 2026

CERRITOS, CA - August 25, 2026 -

HealthMateSauna continues to advance home wellness technology by showcasing its comprehensive line of infrared saunas featuring integrated red light therapy capabilities, addressing growing consumer demand for multi-functional wellness solutions that combine traditional heat therapy with modern light-based treatments.

The company's expanded focus on combining infrared heat with red light therapy represents a response to increasing consumer interest in home wellness solutions that offer multiple therapeutic benefits. Health Mate Sauna units now incorporate both technologies to provide users with a comprehensive approach to relaxation, recovery, and daily wellness maintenance.

"The integration of red light therapy with our infrared sauna technology reflects our commitment to providing comprehensive wellness solutions," said Corey Smee, Director of Product Development at HealthMateSauna. "Customers are increasingly seeking multi-functional wellness equipment that maximizes both space efficiency and therapeutic benefits, and our saunas deliver on both fronts."

The company's infrared saunas utilize patented Tecoloy heaters that deliver precise infrared wavelengths for efficient heating. These heaters work in conjunction with integrated red light therapy components to create what the company describes as a comprehensive wellness environment. The sauna with red light therapy combination allows users to experience the benefits of both technologies simultaneously during their wellness sessions.

HealthMateSauna offers various models to accommodate different household sizes and needs, including two-person, three-person, and four-person configurations. Each model features eco-friendly construction and comes backed by a lifetime warranty, reflecting the company's confidence in its manufacturing quality and durability standards.

The growing interest in home wellness solutions has led many consumers to seek the Best Infrared Sauna for home use that combines multiple therapeutic modalities. HealthMateSauna's approach addresses this demand by incorporating both infrared heat and red light therapy into single units, eliminating the need for separate wellness devices.

To assist customers in selecting appropriate models for their specific needs, the company provides an interactive sauna quiz that evaluates individual preferences, available space, and wellness goals. This tool helps match customers with suitable configurations from the company's range of residential and commercial models.

The company also recognizes that wellness equipment represents a significant investment for many households. Through partnerships with financing providers like Affirm, HealthMateSauna offers flexible payment plans to make their wellness solutions more accessible to a broader range of customers.

HealthMateSauna has been manufacturing infrared saunas for over 40 years, establishing itself as an experienced provider in the home wellness industry. The company specializes in infrared sauna technology and continues to evolve its product offerings to meet changing consumer needs and incorporate emerging wellness technologies. Beyond sauna units themselves, the company also provides a range of accessories designed to enhance the user experience, including covers, backrests, and aromatherapy kits.
