Upland, CA, chiropractic office Atlas Spinal Care is proud to highlight a promising new treatment for cervical radiculopathy, structural correction of the head and neck. This condition, which is very painful and debilitating, can be caused by a variety of different problems in the neck. Through precise chiropractic care, patients can experience a great deal of relief.

"Common causes of chronic cervical radiculopathy are degenerative changes and herniated discs in the neck," says Dr. Tymothy Flory, a cervical spine specialist. "In our office we often see significant improvement for patients by restoring proper structural position of the head and neck."

Atlas Spinal Care is known to be one the best and most trusted chiropractic offices in their area. This is because they treat each patient as an individual, offering only the care that is right for them, rather than the care that for-profit organizations ask them to focus on. The clinic takes a team approach to each patient, thereby ensuring they can see the specialist that is most relevant for their personal condition.

People who have a herniated disc in neck are particularly encouraged to contact the clinic as soon as possible. Atlas Spinal Care offers a free, no obligation initial consultation, during which time it can be determined whether or not a herniated disc is present, and whether or not this has caused the patient's neck and arm pain. Following the consultation, patients will be presented with a treatment plan that has been designed to focus on their individual and particular postural problems.

Atlas Spinal Care is quickly setting itself apart as the best chiropractor in Claremont, CA. Their personal focus, highly developed services, and expertly trained staff ensures that people see the clinic as the go to source for any issues they may have. In so doing, they have also built up a wealth of positive reviews, many of which are from people who have suffered from cervical radiculopathy and who have found extensive relief from this condition. For the clinic, the goal is to make sure everybody is able to enjoy an as high a quality of life as possible, rather than being hampered by their own body.
