Magnetize ME Relocates to Adair Park Development, Expanding SEO Services in Woodstock

August 18, 2026

WOODSTOCK, GA - August 18, 2026 -
Magnetize ME, a digital marketing agency serving small businesses across Georgia, has relocated to a new office within the Adair Park development in Woodstock. The move places the agency inside Collaborate Coworking, a shared workspace within the recently opened development, and marks a new chapter in the company's growth.

The relocation supports the agency's ongoing work in local search optimization, web design, and internet marketing. From its new base in Adair Park, Magnetize ME continues to build online strategies designed to help area businesses attract customers through organic search. The agency works with a single business per industry within a given geographic area, an approach intended to keep each client's online efforts focused and distinct.

The move to Collaborate Coworking positions the agency alongside other professionals within a newer development in the Woodstock area. The shared workspace environment reflects a broader trend among digital service providers, many of whom have adopted flexible office arrangements that place them near other growing businesses.

Michelle Edwards of Magnetize ME said the new location reflects the direction of the company. "Adair Park brings together a range of professionals in one growing space, and that environment fits the way this agency operates," Edwards said. "Being part of Collaborate Coworking and the Woodstock community places the marketing team closer to the local business community it serves every day."

The agency's work centers on search engine optimization for small and local businesses. Its Magnetize ME SEO offerings include local organic search work, mobile optimization, content strategy, video marketing, and website audits. The agency also applies newer methods tied to artificial intelligence search and generative engine optimization, reflecting shifts in how search platforms surface results.

Edwards noted that the demand for local search visibility continues to shape the agency's focus. "Small businesses depend on being found when nearby customers search online, and SEO remains central to that visibility," Edwards said. "Our goal has always been to help local businesses build their brands and capture more recognition online. The new location for our marketing agency gives the team room to keep developing tailored brand-building plans for each client."

Alongside search optimization, Magnetize ME provides web design and social media services. The agency develops an individual online plan for each business it works with, aiming to align each strategy with the specific market and industry of the client. This tailored structure remains consistent following the relocation, with the agency continuing to serve businesses throughout Georgia from its Woodstock base.

The Adair Park development represents part of the continued expansion of commercial and coworking space in the Woodstock area. By joining Collaborate Coworking, Magnetize ME situates itself within a setting built for collaboration among independent professionals and small enterprises.

Magnetize ME is a digital marketing agency based in Woodstock, Georgia, specializing in local SEO, web design, and internet marketing for small businesses. The agency applies a range of methods, including search engine optimization, local search work, social media, and content strategy, to help businesses increase their online presence.
